PRIVACY STATEMENT OF POLYMOUNT

Privacy Statement Polymount International B.V.

This is the privacy statement of the private limited company Polymount International B.V., hereinafter referred to as Polymount. Polymount is registered with the Dutch Chamber of Commerce under number 82042977 and has its registered office at Tabaksplanter 7, 3861 SH Nijkerk, the Netherlands. Polymount is the controller responsible for the personal data described in this privacy statement. In this privacy statement, we explain which personal data we process, for what purposes and on which legal bases, with whom we share data, how long we retain data, and what rights you have. When processing personal data, Polymount acts with due care and in accordance with applicable privacy legislation.

This privacy statement applies to customers, suppliers, website visitors, and other external relations of Polymount International B.V. Additional provisions laid down in internal policies and regulations apply to employees, job applicants, and hired personnel.

For questions about this privacy statement or the processing of personal data, please contact:

Collection of Personal Data

Polymount obtains personal data directly from you when you use its services or in connection with the performance of an agreement. Polymount may also obtain personal data from third parties involved in the agreement or the provision of services. Personal data means any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person.

Categories of Personal Data

- Contact details and name and address details;
- Company details;
- Alternative delivery address;
- Financial data;
- Other personal data provided by you.

Purposes of Processing

- To contact you in order to inform you about the services you have purchased and their performance;
- To provide its services;
- To improve service provision;
- To make payments;
- To comply with legal obligations;
- To carry out marketing and communication activities, insofar as permitted on the basis of an existing customer relationship, a legal basis, or consent obtained;
- To improve the website by analysing visitor behaviour on the website;
- To send newsletters and other relevant company information. You may unsubscribe at any time.
- To exchange data with third parties for the purpose of providing the services.
- Right to withdraw consent: If processing is based on consent, you have the right to withdraw that consent at any time. This does not affect the lawfulness of processing carried out before the withdrawal.

Legal Basis for Processing

Polymount processes personal data only where a valid legal basis exists. To enter into and perform agreements, we process the data necessary for that purpose. We process data required to comply with legal obligations on the basis of those obligations. For marketing, communications, service improvement, and security, we may rely on a legitimate interest, while always assessing whether your interests and fundamental rights override that interest. Where consent is required, we request it in advance, and you may withdraw that consent at any time without affecting the lawfulness of processing carried out before the withdrawal. The personal data we process, the purpose for which we process it, and the legal basis on which we do so vary by processing activity. For customer and supplier management, we process contact, company, order, delivery, and financial data to enter into and perform agreements and to comply with legal obligations. For relationship management and business communications, we process contact and communication data on the basis of our legitimate interest or, where required, your consent. For website administration and security, we process technical data, such as IP addresses and log data, on the basis of our legitimate interest in keeping our website and systems secure and functioning properly. For non-essential cookies and similar technologies, we request prior consent.

Necessity of Processing

The processing of your personal data is necessary to provide the services. The services offered by Polymount cannot be fully performed without processing your personal data. If your explicit consent is required for specific purposes relating to personal data, you must provide that consent separately.

Automated Decision-Making

Polymount does not use automated decision-making or profiling that produces legal effects or otherwise significantly affects data subjects.

Retention Period

Polymount does not retain personal data longer than necessary for the purpose for which it was collected. The specific retention period is determined for each processing activity based on statutory retention obligations, the duration of the agreement, applicable limitation periods, and the need to establish, exercise, or substantiate legal claims. At the end of the applicable period, the personal data is deleted or anonymised. Statutory retention periods may apply to certain categories of personal data. Financial administration records, for example, are retained in accordance with tax retention requirements. Data processed for marketing purposes is retained until the data subject unsubscribes or objects to the processing.

Processing by Third Parties

Polymount shares personal data with third parties only where this is necessary for the performance of an agreement, for the provision of its services, or to comply with a legal obligation. Polymount does not sell personal data. Where a third party processes personal data on behalf of Polymount, Polymount enters into a data processing agreement with that party. Where a third party determines the purposes and means of processing itself, that party is an independent controller and the corresponding legal obligations apply. If personal data is transferred to a country outside the European Economic Area (EEA), Polymount ensures that the transfer takes place in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). This may be based, for example, on an adequacy decision of the European Commission, the use of Standard Contractual Clauses approved by the European Commission, or another legally permitted transfer mechanism.
Personal data may be shared with the following categories of recipients:

- Engaged delivery service provider(s), for the performance of the agreement. The categories of personal data processed are contact details, name and address details, and location data.
- Software suppliers, for the performance of the agreement. The categories of personal data processed are location data, email address, contact details, and name and address details.

- Accountant, for the performance of the agreement. The categories of personal data processed are contact details, name and address details, and financial data.
- Sleeve suppliers, for the performance of the agreement. The categories of personal data processed are location data, email address, contact details, and name and address details.
- IT service providers and hosting providers, for the administration and security of systems and data.

- Legal advisers and insurers, where necessary to protect legitimate interests or perform agreements.

- Government bodies and supervisory authorities, where Polymount is legally required to provide the data.

Security of Personal Data

Polymount takes the protection of your personal data seriously and, taking into account the state of the art, implementation costs, and the nature, scope, context, and purposes of processing, as well as the risks of varying likelihood and severity to the rights and freedoms of individuals, implements appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk.
Polymount has laid down additional internal measures in its GDPR and information security policies.
If a breach of personal data security occurs (a personal data breach), Polymount acts in accordance with its internal data breach procedure and applicable legal obligations. Where required, the affected data subjects and the Dutch Data Protection Authority are informed.

Cookie Statement

Polymount uses technical and functional cookies to optimise the website. Cookies are small text files sent when a website is visited to make visitors' user experience more efficient. By law, Polymount may store cookies on your device if those cookies are strictly necessary for use of the website. Your consent is required for other types of cookies. We recommend accepting cookies for the website's ease of use. Website visitors are given an option to indicate their preference.

The cookies used by Polymount are functional cookies, which ensure that the website works properly. These cookies do not affect personal privacy, so consent does not need to be requested or granted. For example, these cookies store your browser settings so that our website can be displayed optimally, ensure that the website remains accessible through load balancing, and prevent other cookies from being placed through a no-follow setting.

With your consent, we place tracking cookies on your computer. We use these cookies to record which pages you visit and thereby build a profile of your online behaviour. This profile is not linked to your name, address, email address, or similar details, but is used solely to tailor advertisements to your profile so that they are as relevant to you as possible.

Google cookies are also placed on Polymount's website for the purpose of Google Analytics. This means that Polymount cannot link the information to a natural person. We do not track information about your activities elsewhere on the internet. Google Analytics may be required to provide access to this data under applicable laws and regulations. If you have any questions about this, please contact info@polymount-int.nl.

Use of Social Media

Polymount uses third-party cookies to optimise the website. Some cookies are placed by third-party services displayed on the website. Third parties include Google Analytics and social media platforms (LinkedIn and YouTube). The privacy and cookie policies of the relevant company apply to cookies used by other companies (third parties). When you click a social media button on the website, a social media cookie is placed. This enables the social media party to recognise your IP address when you share an article from the website. For information about the cookies used by social media parties and the data and/or personal data they collect through them, Polymount refers you to those parties' privacy and cookie statements.

Browser Settings

If you do not want websites to place cookies on the device you use to view the website, you can adjust your browser settings. Before a cookie is placed, you will receive a warning and must give your consent. If you do not consent, the website may, for example, function less effectively. You can configure your browser to reject all cookies, including third-party cookies. You can also delete cookies that have already been placed. To do so, adjust your browser settings under preferences and then change the privacy settings.
This privacy statement does not apply to third-party websites linked to this website. We cannot guarantee that these third parties handle your personal data reliably or securely. We recommend that you read the privacy statement of these websites before using them.

Rights of Data Subjects

- Right of access: As a data subject, you have the right to obtain confirmation as to whether or not your personal data is being processed and, where that is the case, to obtain access to information concerning that processing.
- Right to rectification: You have the right to have inaccurate data corrected and incomplete data completed.
- Right to erasure: A data subject has the right to have personal data concerning them erased without undue delay.
- Right to restriction of processing: As a data subject, you have the right to restrict the processing of your personal data. Please contact Polymount for this purpose.
- Right to data portability: A data subject has the right to receive the personal data concerning them that they have provided to Polymount in a structured, commonly used, and machine-readable format, and to transmit that data without hindrance from the controller to which it was provided.
- Right to object: The data subject has the right to object at any time, on grounds relating to their particular situation, to the processing of personal data concerning them, including profiling based on those provisions. Polymount will cease processing the personal data unless there are compelling legitimate grounds for the processing that override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject or that are related to the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims.

Complaints

If you have a complaint about how Polymount handles your personal data or wish to exercise one of the rights referred to above, you may contact us via the website or by email at info@polymount-int.nl. To verify that you are the person seeking to exercise a right, Polymount asks you to include a copy of your identity document. To protect your privacy, you may black out your passport photo and MRZ (the strip of numbers at the bottom). Polymount will respond to your request as soon as possible and no later than within one month, with the possibility of extending this period by two months for complex requests. You may also lodge a complaint with the Dutch Data Protection Authority, the competent supervisory authority.

Changes to This Privacy Statement

Polymount may amend this privacy statement at any time. The most recent version is published on the website. Therefore, please check the website regularly for the latest version. If the new privacy statement affects how we process personal data already collected about you, we will inform you by email. In the event of translations, the Dutch version will always prevail.
